

A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THE PSYCHOLOGICAL WELL-BEING AMONG URBAN AND RURAL EDUCATED UNEMPLOYED PEOPLE

SUNIL S. JADAV*; DR. PANKAJ S. SUVERA

*PH. D. RESEARCH SCHOLAR,
DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY, S P UNIVERSITY, V.V.NAGAR

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR,
DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY, S P UNIVERSITY, V.V.NAGAR

ABSTRACT:

Aim of the research is to find out the Psychological Well-being among educated unemployed peoples so investigator selected two groups one is urban educated unemployed people and other is rural educated unemployed people, both groups have 200 peoples. In each group has 100 urban educated unemployed people and other one groups has 100 rural educated unemployed people Data were collected from Banaskantha district. Scale was use for data collection is personal datasheet and Psychological Well-being scale developed by Bhogale and Prakash (1995), 2x2 factorial design was used and data were analysis by ANOVA test. Result show, Area had no impact on the Psychological well-being of educated unemployed people. Sex had no impact on the Psychological well-being of educated unemployed people. The interaction between area and sex had no impact on the Psychological well-being of educated unemployed people.

KEYWORDS: unemployed people, investigator.
