ABSTRACT

School education has vital role to play in making of society as well as nation. Education has now become one of the basic needs along with food, cloth and shelter. There are various measures initiated by several reformers for the right to education. History beholds the fact. Constitution of India directs the nation to provide free and compulsory education to the children. National and international level efforts work for education. Right to Education Act passed by government of India guarantees free and compulsory education to children in age group 6 -14. Here an attempt has been made to find out the various challenges before the implementation of the act. The present research uses secondary data sources such as reports, journals articles etc. It has been found out that the implementation of the act poses several challenges in the context of access to all, equality, and quality and implementation at grass root level. The present research uses secondary data sources such as reports of various Government committees, Journals, books etc.
